An “ends of justice” exclusion of time under the Speedy Trial Act is disfavored and “was meant to be a rarely used tool for those cases demanding more flexible treatment.”⁹ However, based on the ongoing nature of the COVID-19 pandemic in the District, the effect of national and local public health recommendations, and the findings and conclusions in Chief Judge Shelby's General Orders 20-009 through 20-012, 20-017, 20-021, 20-026, 20-029, 20-030, 21-001, 21-003, 21-007, 21-009, 21-012, 21-015, 22-002, 22-004, 22-006, and 22-010 it is necessary and appropriate to continue trial in this case and exclude time under the Speedy Trial Act. The ongoing spread of COVID-19 cases and deaths nationally, and in Utah, demand modifications in court practices to protect the public health. Courts and court operations are necessarily social operations, involving many people.

The need to protect the health of the public in the midst of a deadly pandemic outweighs the rights of Defendant and the public to a speedy trial. Moreover, there is a reduced ability to obtain an adequate spectrum of jurors and available counsel, witnesses, and court personnel to be present in the courtroom for trial. Long exposure in confined spaces, which is inherent in trial, increases risk of infection. Video and audio conferencing, used for hearings, are not available for trials. Counsel's ability to adequately prepare for trial, including locating and consulting with witnesses, and defense counsel's ability to confer with Defendant, under these circumstances is also reduced.

A failure to continue trial under these circumstances would result in a miscarriage of justice¹⁰ and would deny counsel for the government and Defendant the reasonable time necessary for effective preparation, taking into account the exercise of due diligence.¹¹ Therefore, the ends of justice served by such a continuance outweigh the best interests of the public and Defendant in a speedy trial.¹² This continuance is not predicated on general congestion of the court's calendar or lack of diligent preparation by counsel.¹³
